Address, to Return His Majesty Thanks for his Speech from the Throne; to assure Him that the House are sensible that Events have recently occurred which must require our united Vigilance and Exertion to preserve to this Country the Advantages it has hitherto enjoyed; expressing Concern that not only a Spirit of Tumult and Disorder has shewn itself in Acts of Riot and Insurrection which required the Interposition of a Military Force in Support of the Civil Magistrate, but that the Industry employed to excite Discontent has appeared to proceed from a Design to attempt, in Concert with Persons in Foreign Countries, the Destruction of our Constitution, and the Subversion of all Order and Government: Assuring His Majesty that the House cannot but participate in the Uneasiness with which He must observe any Indications of an Intention to excite Disturbances in other Countries, and particularly to adopt Measures towards The States General, inconsistent with the Law of Nations, and hoping that His Majesty's Exertions, and the Steps He has taken for augmenting His Forces, will have the Tendency both to maintain internal Tranquillity and to render a firm and temperate Conduct effectual for preserving the Blessings of Peace; that His Majesty may rely on their zealous Concurrence in such Measures as may prove necessary for the Security of these Kingdoms and for the Performance of our Engagements, and that they will proceed to make such Provision as shall be requisite for the several Branches of the Public Service: Offering Congratulations on the brilliant Successes of the British Arms in India, and on the Termination of the War in that Country; and assuring His Majesty that the House will employ their utmost Attention, with a View to such Measures for the future Government of those valuable Possessions, as shall appear most likely to provide for their internal Prosperity: Expressing their Zeal and Readiness to enter on the Consideration of any Measures which may appear necessary for enforcing Obedience to the Laws, and for repressing every Attempt to disturb the Peace and Tranquillity of these Kingdoms; Amendment proposed, not made; Address resolved on; Committee appointed to prepare it; King's Speech referred; 13 Dec.
